UNITED STATES PRESSES HUERTA

Mexican Dictator Must Bring Insurrection to Close by March.

U. S. NAVY IS READY.

Wilson's Attitude Regarded as A Threat to Intervene Should Present Conditions Continue.

Washington, Jan. 5—President Wilson has decided to give the President of the present regime in Mexico until March 1 to restore order, according to private advices reaching Washington today from Mexico City. The fact that nothing is planned for the immediate future is given as the reason for the President's statement that there is at present no change of policy on foot.

Should the de facto government in Mexico fail to improve the situation by that date it is believed in the Mexican capital that intervention by the United States will follow.

In anticipation of the worst the Navy Department has already made arrangements for a concentration of additional battleships in southern waters. Although these arrangements were made some time ago, in accordance with the usual custom of holding winter practice, they will enable the full naval strength of the United States to be near the Mexican coast in the event of drastic action by the United States.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 5. — Fighting continued yesterday at Ojinaga, with the federals somewhat more aggressive than at any time since the fighting began. A column of 2,000 federal cavalry was engaged in an attempt to flank the rebel rear guard on the way to the Conchas river at last reports.

An effort by the rebels to storm the federal position shortly after midnight under cover of a bambardment by all the available cannon was met by the federals with steady artillery and rifle fire, which soon threw the storming parties back in confusion on the intrenchments. This repulse, following the reverse of Friday night is said to have disheartened the rebels, who are now likely to await the arrival of the promised reinforcements from Chihuahua before making another general attack.

MOTHER KILLS HERSELF.

She Jumps in Front of Train After Hearing of Murders by Son.

Pitsburgh, Pa., Jan. 5—Brooding over the acts of her son, Henry Rokowski, who last Sunday at West Hempstead killed one man and wounded two others so they have since died, Mrs. Katrina Rokowski yesterday threw herself in front of a train at Hays, a suburban town.

She was almost instantly killed.

Posses of county detectives and deputy sheriffs continue to search for Rokowski, who has been reported a number of times as having been seen in the vicinity of the shooting.

Soon after the body of Mrs. Rokowski was removed from the track the county detectives were told that her son had been seen standing on a hill nearby. They at once gathered their forces and prepared to surround the hill in the hope of catching him before nightfall. They were joined by several hundred citizens.

A search of the hill, an abandoned mine and several caves failed to disclose any trace of Rokowski.

Will Censor Films.

Richmond, Jan. 5.—Unless it is approved by a committee of seventeen, appointed by Mayor Ainslie, the motion picture play, "Traffic in Souls," booked for the Academy of Music next week, will not be allowed by the police.

The play is scheduled for the whole week, with two engagements a day—matinee and night. Manager Lee Wise, of the Academy, will arrange a presentation of the films for the inspection of the committee this morning.

NEWS OF THE DAY

Louden H. Nolan, 17 years old, a high school student, was accidentally drowned in the Blackwater river, Davis, W. Va., a day or two ago. He was skating with Miss Velma Clark, and they went down together under the thin ice. Miss Clark proved to be a good swimmer and kept afloat without much trouble. She was towed in on a piece of pulp wood. Nolan had hold of her foot and it was thought he would be got out, but he lost his grip and sank. He was a member of the Boy Scouts.

A wireless message received in New York last night by agents of the Campania Translation said that the steamer Manuel Calvo, of that line, was on her way into port towing a disabled tank steamer when, at a point 15 miles east of Sandy Hook, the steamer sank. The Manuel Calvo lost one life boat, the dispatch said. There was no mention of any loss of lift, nor was the name of the tank steamer given. The tank steamer carried a crew of 35 men. The Manuel Calvo has about 100 passengers on board and a large cargo of freight.

Five lives are known to have been lost and more than $1,000,00 in damage has been done by the storm which has raged from Portland, Me., to Norfolk, Va., during the last few days.

The body of Miss Jessie E. McCann, a young settlement worker, who disappeared from her Brooklyn home just a month ago, was yesterday given up by the sea. It was found by a watchman shortly after daybreak at Coney Island, having been washed ashore by the heavy surf that pounded the beach during last night's storm. Long immersion had made the features unrecognizable, but identification of the young woman by her family was made possbile by a signet ring with the initials "J. E. M." and by articles of clothing. Miss McCann was known to have worn the day she disappeared. She was last seen alive at Coney Island. Her death is a mystery.

The American ambassador, Joseph E. Willard, of Richmond, Va., made official announcement yesterday in Madrid of his daughter, Miss Belle Wyatt Willard, to Kermit Roosevelt, son of former President Theodore Roosevet. The marriage will probably take place late in the spring.

Standing in line with 50 unemployed men, Mayor W. W. Seymour, of Tacoma, Wash., yesterday took the oath of allegiance and became a charter member of Local No. 23, Hoboes of America, which was installed in an abandoned school building now being occupied by unemployed. Warmly endorsing the movement Mayor Seymour said: "No man can tell but that some day I may become an active member of your union, and any one of you may become mayor of this city."

Five persons were killed and several others injured when a freight train struck a street car at a grade crossing at Memphis, Tenn., last night.

Waving his arms and mumbling incoherently, a man attempted to vault the alter rail of the new cathedral chapel at St. Louis yesterday, while Archbishop Glennon was delivering a sermon on intemperance. Several men rushed toward the man believing he was about to attack the prelate. The prisoner said he was Edward R. Hoehn.

Mrs. Eugene C. Loudi is dead and her husband, who is alleged to have cut her throat at their home in South Weymouth, Mass., is believed to be dying from a throat-gash self-inflicted, as the result of a famly quarrel last night. The three young children of the couple saw their mother struck down, and their screams attracted neighbors. Mrs. Loud died within half an hour. Loud is foreman in a shoe factory.

HEAVY LOSSES IN STORM'S FURY

Jersey Coast Strewn With Wreck Stuff From Demolished Buildings.

SUMMER HOMES GONE.

Damage Said to Reach One Million Dollars—Many Places in Pennsylvania Snow Bound.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5.—Not a life is reported to be lost in all the storm wreck that strews the Jersey coast with the debris of summer homes and other smashed buildings. The storm that lashed the beaches with almost incessant fury for nearly 48 hours has left one great swath of wrecked houses, while many others tottered in the gale as the angry sea encroached and undermined their foundations.

Reports from all of the coast resorts show that the losses are extremely heavy, probably amounting to a million dollars all told, but it will be some days before the actual losses can be calculated. In every direction gangs of workmen were set to work repairing damage and taking means to prevent further inroads by the sea.

Thousands of visitors in Atlantic City and other resorts on the lower coast went out well wrapped yesterday and stood fascinated by the roar and dash of the mighty sea. At many points the great breakers dashed in fury over the boardwalk, threatening to carry away big sections. In Ventnor, Margaret City and Longport big chunks were cut out of the promenade and carried away with the timbers of wrecked cottages. Six more cottages went down at Ocean City but with a change of the wind it was expected that the worst had been experienced.

Sea Bright is still staggering under the heavy losses it has sustained. Scarcely a building in the whole resort is left intact. The handsome summer residences of many wealthy New Yorkers have suffered along with the humble homes of the fisherfolk, and the local assessor there estimates the total loss at close to a half million of dollars. The great storm of Christmas did as much damage, so that the residents feel deeply dejected. It seemed that both storms centered there and did the worst damage of any point on the coast.

Kane, Pa., Jan. 5.—The heaviest snowfall this section has seen in years has fallen in the last 24 hours, measuring from 18 to 36 inches in depth, and still coming down thickly. Both the Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio railroads are having great difficulty in operating trains. Telephone companies are also heavy losers. It is predicted that all records for this section will be broken. Similar conditions prevail in Altoona Corry, Coatesville and other places in the state.

STORM AT NEW ALEXANDRIA.

Place is Flooded—Men Work on Bridge Approaches.

People residing at New Alexandria, on the south side of Hunting Creek, had thrilling experiences during the storm and high wind Saturday. As is invariably the case during eastern winds and abnormally high tides, the lowlands were flooded and people had considerable difficulty in moving to and fro.

A report was started in this city that the electric railway bridge was menaced, but trains continued to pass over it as usual. A force of men were employed in strengthening the approaches, but no serious damage was caused to the structure.

WOULD PREVENT TAX COLLECTION

Oliver Durant Claims That He Has Been Assessed Erroneously.

AN IMPORTANT ISSUE.

Collection of About $85,000 Involved in Case—Plaintiff Claims Washington as His Residence.

A matter of considerable importance to the State of Virginia is involved in a suit brought in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia at Alexandria which meets in this city tomorrow by Oliver Durant, a man of wealth and prominence. Mr. Durant has asked the court permanently to enjoin the Culpeper county authorities from collecting from him about $85,000 in State and county taxes alleged to have been erroneously assessed against him on his stocks, bonds, etc., by these officers. The determination of this amateter hinges upon question of Mr. Durant's legal residence, he claiming Washington city as his residence, and the county authorities claiming it to be Culpeper county, Va. For a number of years Mr. Durant's family has lived in this county, his wife being the owner of a valuable farm near Boston, and he has divided his time between this place and the location of his various interests outside of the State of Virginia.

FISHNET REGULATIONS.

Lines Unchanged From Potomac to Hampton Roads.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Last January the War Department adopted regulations moving considerably inward the Emit to which fishnets could legally be carried into the channel along the western shore of Chesapeake Bay, Virginia from the mouth of the Potomac river to Hampton Roads.

When agents of the department began to pull up the stakes which were outside of the new line a cry went up from the local fishermen, who took their case to State Fish Commissioner Lee and to the Virginia Senators. Several delegations came to Washington accompanied by Commissioner Lee, and recently a hearing was held in the office of Assistant Secretary of War Breckenridge. Pending investigation by the War Department the nets, several hundred thousand dollars' worth of which were involved, were allowed to stand.

Senator Swanson, who has been active in behalf of the net fishermen, has received a letter from Assistant Secretary Breckenridge informing him that the regulation of last January with regard to the Virginia net limits had been revised so as to leave the lines practically unchanged from the Potomac to Hampton Roads. Between Smith Point Light and Wolf Trap Light, however, it is understood that after the fishing season of 1913-14 there may be changes which will require the placing of fishing structures nearer the shore.

The chief of engineers of the army will convene a board composed of Colonels Lansing H. Beach, William C. Langfitt and E. E. Winslow to recommend final lines for fishing structures between Smith Point Light and Wolf Trap Light, and also to make recommendations concerning the location and width of inshore channels needed for small craft.

RICHMOND PASTOR ANSWERS CHARGES

Gifts of The Wealthy Have Often Shorn Church of Power.

"INSIDE OF THE CUP."

Speaker Alleges the Persecution Today is Not by Stake, But Refusal to Attend Church.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 5.—Dr. W. J. Young, pastor of the Centenary Methodist Church, in his sermon last night on "The Inside of the Cup", which was suggested by Winston Churchill's novel of the same name, said that many of the criticisms of the Church made by the novelist was justified, that a number were not based on facts according to his idea, while still others exaggerated the real condition.

Dr. Young said that while he could not accept many of the statements made by the writer and did not mean to enter into a discussion of the merits of the work, he did consider that "The Inside of the Cup" brought vividly to light many of the church problems and that they were worthy of serious consideration.

That men of wealth frequently dominate the church, dictate its polities and control the pulpit, Dr. Young intimated was true. In this connection, he said, "How often, oh, how often how I wished I was a tent maker that I might go out and declare what was in my mind, might state the truths which I am commissioned by God to say. Not that I have not done so, but difficulties have often been brought forward and objections raised. What a comfort it is to say the things which you know should be said! What a comfort!

"The church must be sustained to a great extent through the contributions of the rich, it requires a great amount of money to maintain it, to carry on its work, and the efforts to secure financial support have more than once shorn the church of its power. Many times have I wished the money sought after for educational purposes at the bottom of the sea rather than see the church—and my church has been implicated as well as others," interjected the minister—"lose its dignity and effectiveness for money.

"Persecution as administered today it not by the stake, it is by the refusal of persons, at whom truths are directed, to attend services, and it is because the persons who are told the things which strike home are often wealthy pillars of the church that the pressure is brought to bear on the pastor.

"There are difficulties which cannot be known, which cannot be realized unless one has been a preacher in a city church. And yet, although the wealthy frequently bring pressure to bear on a pastor, so often do those who have considerably less of the world's goods, and it has been my experience to find it more difficult to declare the whole gospel to the latter than to the more wealthy of a congregation."

BARTENDER IS SHOT.

Negro Enters Norfolk Saloon and Discharges Gun.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 5.—John Pullman, colored, about 40 years old, employed as a bar tender in Lynch's saloon, Cooke and London streets, was shot in the neck at 6:30 o'clock Saturday night by an unknown negro, who discharged a shot gun at him without warning as he stood behind the bar. Pullman was badly wounded, and was taken to King's Daughters' Hospital for treatment.

It appears, according to statements given to the police of the Second Precinct, that the negro who did the shooting was in the saloon earlier in the evening and became involved in some sort of an argument with Pullman. He left the place and went to Queen street and Second Avenue, where he took a gun from a cook shop, and returned to the Lynch saloon and shot Pullman.

DAMAGE ON RIVER FRONT

Northeasterly Winds and High Tides Cause Havoc Among Boats in Docks

The northeasterly wind and rain which set in Friday night and continued all day Saturday caused trouble around the river front, as is always the case under such conditions. The water on Saturday was awash with the wharves and invaded the Strand extending westward as far as the Southern Railway tracks on Union street. The merchants, profiting by their experience during the Johnstown flood during the latter part of May, 1889, had prepared for such an emergency, and the main damage was to banks of coal which were on the wharves. Some of the pyramids at W. A. Smoot & Co.'s. wharves were undermined by the rising waters, and many tons washed away. Similar trouble was occasioned at the shipyard by the washing away of coal. The schooner Cora McKenney, lyng at the shipyard lost both masts during the storm.

The tide reached its highest point during Saturday afternoon, but it soon succeeded perciptibly. The high northeast wind dashed boats which were in the docks against the wharves and against each other, resulting in considerable damage. Some motorboats were capsized and sunk during the heavy blow.

The wind changed Saturday night to the northwest which brought relief to the owners of boats and to the merchants about the river front.

Rainy conditions continued yesterday and last night, the wind still holding to the northwest and similar conditions have prevailed today. There were spits of snow at times last night.

While the river has been clear of sailing vessels, the Norfolk, Baltimore and lower steamers have made their trips as usual.

Reports received in Alexandria indicate that the damage caused by the high wind at various points down the river was considerable. Some small landings were inundated and wharves were swept away.

Indications are not favorable for any extended period of fair weather over the United States during the coming week, the Weather Bureau announces.

The weather will be generally fair for a few days over the central and eastern portions of the country, except on Monday, when snow will continue from the Lake Region eastward. It will be somewhat colder in the East and comparatively low temperatures will continue in the Southeast.

HAD PLANNED TO ESCAPE

Prisoner in City Jail Improvised Key and Made Impressions on Wood and Soap

A number of prisoners in the city jail are closely confined to their cells following three attempts at a jail delivery made within the last few days. Lewis A. Tucker, of Washington, who is held for the action of the grand jury, on the charge of having stolen overcoats and hats from a boarding house on King street three weeks ago is believed to be the ring leader in the affair and is being closely watched by Jailor Chandler.

Tucker was found to have in his possession a cleverly constructed key to the main door of the corridor which he had fashioned from a pewter spoon, several pieces of wire which had been made into lock-picks and arrangements made of wood and soap which he had used to take impressions of the various locks.

City Sergeant Robert H. Cox made an investigation of the affair Sunday afternoon and ordered the men locked up in different cells.

Delaney and afterwards taken to the Episcopal Eye Ear, and Throat Hospital, Washington, for treatment.

SUSPECT DISMISSED.

John T. Norsworthy, of Mt. Carmel Ill., who says that he is a former member of the Illinois legislature and claims acquaintance with a number of prominent men in Washington, was arranged in police court this morning on the charge of vagrancy. He was arrested Saturday night on suspicion of being Pat Crowe, the kidnapper, who was said to have been in Alexandria for some days following the serving of a term at Occoquan. In police court today Norsworthy, who is a man of refinement and education, gave a long discourse on the subject of intemperance, but said that there were extenuating circumstances in his case, exposure to the weather and a recent illnesse ausing a few drinks to intoxicate him. Justice Caton dismissed him on his promise to leave the city at once.

STORM REACHES ARK.

Floating Monte Carlo Driven Ashore On Southside of Hunting Creek.

The hulk of the ferry steamer Columbia which was converted into an ark several years ago and which has recently been anchored in Hunting Creek, was an object of the storm's fury on Saturday. The float from which visitors embarked on a gasoline launch was destroyed and the ark driven on the beach by the high northwesterly wind.

The ark was for a long time anchored in the river off Jone's Point, and while steamers ran between Alexandria and Washington it was the resort of many, especially on Sundays. Most of the visitors were Washingtonians. Since the passing away of the ferry service the ark has been moored in Hunting Creek, passengers being transferred from the float near the south end of the electric railway bridge.

THE WOMEN OF THE DEBATABLE LAND.

A new book by a well-known Virginian should be of special interest to persons living in this part of Virginia It is the "Women of the Debatable Land," by Alexander Hunter, published by the Cobden Publishing Company, of Washington, D. C. The purpose of the book set forth by the author in the preface and dedication is to immortalize the deeds of heroism of the women of the South who while they did not go to the front in the awful days of the Civil War did so much for the cause so dear to their hearts and suffered not only from the anxiety that must ever be the guerdon of the family of a soldier but also from physical and material needs without a murmur.

The Debatable Land " was Fauquier county where, during the entire war the Northern and Southern forces fought for mastery, and ownership," "Mosby's Confederacy" as it was often called. Fairfax and Prince William counties were strongly fortified by Federal forces and Culpeper was usually occupied by the Confederates, but Fauquier was the battle ground being the headquarters for Mosby and his men. If human blood enriches soil "Mosby's Confederacy" should be the garden spot of the world, a place where the dead far outnumbered the living.

In all the stories of the war that have been written none give a more graphic or personal view point than this book of Mr. Hunter's. A most admirable back ground for the story is given in a short but comprehensive historical sketch of Colonial days and the early people of that part of Virginia. Mr. Hunter shows his intimate acquaintance with the classics and with history and apart from the local interest of the book, it is sure to find a hearty welcome every where as a delightful story.

Mr. Hunter himself was a member of the famous Black Horse Calvary and spent the greater part of the winters of '63, '64 and '65 in Fauquier, hence the narative has a directness and vigor that makes the scenes live before you as you read. The constant recurrence of names that are household words with us adds to the interest of the book and the illustrations, many of them reproductions of old photographs, are especially interesting.

Certainly all Southern soldiers should be interested in the movement to build a monument to the women of the Confederacy and the reading of this book will add material interest to the movement in the hearts of those who were not so closely associated with these women as Mr. Hunter and his comrades, but who believed in keeping before the eyes of the young the enduring monuments of heroic deeds in women as well as those of men.

MAKE COMPANIONS OF YOUR CHILDREN.

Mayor J. E. Holladay, of Suffolk, Va. in compliance with a request from the Y. M. C. A. headquarters of the United States, has issued a proclamation asking that during the year 1914, there be more care exercised by parents over their children, and especially the comradeship between father and son.

The Young Men's Christian Association is on the right track, and the Mayor of Suffolk in endorsing the suggestion has acted wisely.

While Dickens may have overdrawn Dombey's conduct towards his daughter, it is unfortunately true that often fathers are remiss in not making companions of their children. It often happens that specimens of the genus homo devote more of their attention to dogs than to their offspring, and when they take walks, instead of summoning their children to accompany them, whistle for the family cur.

Of course, some parents have by their strict surveillance in keeping children to their apron strings robbed them of their childhood days. They should at times be allowed to romp with companions of their own age, but to turn them over entirely to juvenile society and allow them to grow up to regard their paterfamilias as a tyrant and a being to be avoided, is the serious side of the picture.

There are always many new year's resolves. A practical one for fathers would be attempts to interest themselves in their offspring and as often as possible make companions of them.

NAVY YARD PAY INCREASED.

Washington Not Included in Daniels' Announcement.

Wage increases for 1,400 employes of navy yards, amounting in all to more than $50,000 annually, were announced last night by Secretary Daniels. The yards, whose employes will benefit are those at Portsmouth, N.H.; Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Charleston, S. C.; Mare Island, Cal., and Puget Sound. The increases become effective at once.

About a month ago the wage board for the Washington yard submitted a report to Secretary Daniels. This report, Capt. H. P. Jones, commandant of the navy yard and superintendent of the gun factory, said proposed but a few changes in the scale of wages that is now prevailing at the yard

The Washington navy yard has upon its pay rolls approximately 3,200 men, whose wages total between $10,000 and $12,000 per day.

In a few trades in two yards wages have been decreased, but Secretary Daniels said that this was due to previously existing inequalities, and that the reductions will not total over $1,500 a year, affecting less than 50 employes.

NEWS OF THE OLD DOMINION

DEATH OF FLORENCE SHENECK

Norfolk Girl Dies After Returning to Norfolk.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 5.—Florence Schenck, Norfolk belle, who gained notoriety through her elopement with Charles Wilson, stable manager for Alfred Vanderbilt, died here early today. Her last two wishes were granted. She was reconciled with her father, Dr. Powhattan S. Schenck, and she was brought to her girlhood home here from New York to die.

New York, Jan. 5.—Seven years ago Florence Schenck ran away from her home in Norfolk, Va. Saturday she was taken back.

Dr. Powhatan Schenck, her father, had come to New York, two days before with his wife, a semi-invalid, on the saddest holiday journey taken by any pair in that fine old State.

They came to bid farewell to their dying daughter in the sanatorium in New York. When they found that the end was not so near as they thought, her mother's wish prevailed.

"Take her home to die," said the frail woman, who had not seen her daughter for seven years.

Dr. Teague, who had attended the girl in her last illness, and performed the operation, that at most might not save, but would prolong her life, protested against moving his patient.

"She is too weak. She may die on the way," he said.

But Dr. Powhatan Schenck is a father with the stuff of the old Romans in him. He is health commissioner of Norfolk. His duty, he believes, is at his post.

"If she dies on the way, I shall have done my duty," he said. Miss Schenck was in a state of coma when she was carried on a litter aboard the train that left for Norfolk on Friday night.

She was seventeen when she ran away from her home in the company of Charles Wilson, Alfred Vanderbilt's whip.

She had recently brought suit against Wilson for fraud for a marriage which she declares took place in Paddington, England, three days before the interlocutory decree from the former Mrs. Wilson was in full force. The case was recently argued before Justice Cavegan, who reserved his decision.

For the last year, Miss Schenck dropped out of sight even of her former associates. A detective sent in search of her, found her living on the bounty of a cafe keeper in Eighth Avenue.

She was in rags. The feet that had been accustomed to silk hose and French slippers were encased in a cast-off par of men's shoes. For the last year she has lived upon the charity of more prosperous friends. Fred Schulz, a detective once in the employ of Wilson, but latterly a friend of Miss Schenck, will follow her to Norfolk as is her wish.

A wireless message from Sable Island last night told of the loss of the Nova Scotian schooner Ionia with her captain and a crew of six men. Considerable wreckage from the ship has washed ashore.

NORFOLK CONTEST CASE.

Evidence For Both Sides Completed Before Adjournment Saturday.

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 5.—All the evidence in the contested election cases was concluded Saturday and Judge Chichester of Fredericksburg, who presided, will return on January 17th to hear argument. Counsel for Jas. V. Trehy expressed willingness to submit the case without argument. Counsel for contestants said it was desired by their side to argue the case. Counsel for contestee asked for argument next week but Judge Chichester said he could not return at that time as he had court in his own circuit which would conflict. Counsel for contestants asked that the argument be adjourned until January 17th and Judge Chichester granted this request.

USHER WEDS MAID OF HONOR.

Attendants at One Ceremony, Principals at the Second.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 5.—An unexpected double wedding took place Thursday in Somerset Christian Church, Orange county. After serving as usher at the marriage of J. N. Colvin to Miss Evelyn G. Clark, Walter Lynn Hogan, of Fredericksburg, led Miss Rosalie Wood Clark, maid of honor at the first wedding, to the altar, and the Rev. Joseph F. Lipscomb married them.

Mr. and Mrs. Colvin were their attendants.

At the first ceremony Miss Clark was given in marriage by her brother, Grover Clark, and her father played the wedding march. Harry Colvin, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers, besides Mr. Hogan, were Edward Yager, Andrew Colvin, O. L. Wood, Frank Allman and Andrew Carpenter.

ALDERMAN WILL STAY.

Dean Page Denies Report of his Ill Health.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 5.—Dean James Morris Page, of the University of Virginia, gave out yesterday the following statement regarding the rumor to the effect that President Alderman might retire from the presidency of the university.

"The report printed recently to the effect that President Alderman may sever his connection with the University of Virginia on account of the state of his health is wholly unfounded and absurd. Both Dean Whitehead and I have seen Dr. Alderman within the last two weeks and have had several interviews with him on important business matters. We found Dr. Alderman in the very best of spirits and in excellent health. He weighs 190 pounds and is practically free from tuberculosis.

"He would be at his post at the university right now except for the fact that an eminent throat specialist has advised him not to use his voice for several months. This specialist assures him that if he will recover the full use of his voice. If President Alderman were not a public speaker his physician would permit him to go ahead and use his voice.

"The president's improvement since he has been at Saranac has been steady and constant. There is no shadow of a doubt but that he will return to his post within a few months in much better physical condition than for the last 30 years."

AFTER TOY GUNS.

Norfolk Police Will Confiscate all They Can Find.

Major Kizer says that he has received so many complaints about the damage that boys were doing in various parts of the city with their toy guns that he has found it necessary and advisable to issue the order to confiscate them. He already has about 50 at headquarters and these will be destroyed.
